

GOV. KOSSUTH.

The Baltimore American of the 12th inst., says:—
Gov. Kossuth will proceed this morning from Washington to Annapolis, as the invited guest of Governor Lowe. He will probably pass through this city to-morrow on his way to Harrisburg. From thence he will proceed to Pittsburg and Cincinnati.

The visit of Kossuth to Mr. Clay on Friday is thus noted in the National Intelligencer.

About two o'clock, M. Kossuth, accompanied by Gen. Cass, called upon Mr. Clay at his rooms at the National Hotel.

The interview was on both sides very cordial and friendly, and was continued about an hour, in the course of which we learn that Mr. Clay frankly disclosed his sentiments, and at considerable length, as to the policy of this country in reference to the question of intervention in European affairs. Mr. Clay, as it has been understood, is opposed to any change in this policy, deeming it best not only for ourselves but likewise for the down-trodden populations of Europe, that we should pursue, as hitherto, the even tenor of our way.

M. Kossuth paid the most respectful attention to Mr. Clay, and on his side imparted much interesting intelligence as to the social and political condition of several of the European Nations.

A telegraphic despatch in the Philadelphia American furnishes the following additional and interesting particulars.

KOSSUTH'S VISIT TO HENRY CLAY.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9, 1852.

A most interesting interview between Governor Kossuth and Henry Clay took place this day, at half past two o'clock, at the apartments of the latter. Kossuth was introduced by Senator Cass. Mr. Clay received him standing, and then, being seated on account of his feeble condition, addressed the celebrated Magyar in a speech half an hour in length, frankly expressing his opinions. He deprecated the policy of intervention as the greatest calamity which could befall this country, and said that, as the possessors of the only existing republic, the example of man's capacity for self-government, it was the duty of the American people to encourage human progress and prosperity on this continent, which might be destroyed by foreign wars, involving in their fall all hopes of free institutions. These were, he said, the sentiments of a dying man who had struggled for freedom.

Kossuth replied. He did not combat Mr. Clay's positions, but confined himself to the prospects of Hungary and the situation of France, believing that events in the latter country would terminate in civil war, and that the Queen's Government would be overthrown, and the Queen our Sovereign.

Mr. Clay was favorably impressed with Kossuth, as regarded mind and manner. Only four spectators were present.

Mr. Clay will yet speak, or write, his opinion on this important subject. The effort of receiving Kossuth has exhausted him somewhat. In other respects he has gained lately.

The Maine Law.

The State of Maine has doubtless a good many laws—some higher, others lower—but there is one honored throughout the length and breadth of the land as pre-eminently "The Maine Law." It is the act of her present Legislature at its last session whereby the traffic in alcoholic liquors is cut up root and branch—not merely forbidden, but eradicated or compelled to hide in deep holes and skulls about the darkest corners. This law has now been some six months in operation, and has already effected a vast amount of good. Drunkenness is dying out, pauperism is drying up, and murder is scarcely heard of or dreaded. All honor to Maine and "The Maine Law."

There seems to be hardly room for doubt that the law will not only be enforced but sustained. A meeting was called in Lisbon, Lincoln Co., a few days since, to instruct the representatives of that town to vote for its repeal. The voters generally attended, and voted as follows: for the instructing resolve 33; against it 147, or more than four to one. A similar meeting was lately held in Ellsworth with an equally favorable result. Up to this moment we have not heard of a single town instructing its representative to vote in favor of repeal.—New York Tribune.

Maine for Maine.

"Bury the Lord, all ye people."

The city of Portland, Maine, is a city of 20,000 inhabitants, and yet during the present month of November, not a single row has occurred in its streets, nor a single person has been committed to the watch-house. All this quietude and peacefulness arises from the practical operation of the anti-rambling principles and provisions of the celebrated Maine Liquor Law. When this law went into operation in June last, there were in Portland some 300 or 400 run-shops, selling lawfully and openly night and day, and now there is not known to be even one. Blessings on the glorious "Maine Liquor Law," and on those who enacted it, and those who enforce it.—So says Bro. Goodrich, to which we say "Amen and amen!"—Tem. Organ.
